

Depreciating Market

In a declining market it is vitally important to price right in the beginning.

If you are not at or below the current market value today, you are overpriced tomorrow.

Eventually you'll sell months later well below what it would have sold for months earlier.

